launches new cutlery range

The new Planets cutlery range from Grunweg ensures that all dinner tables look out of this world.

Neptune, Jupiter, Mercury and Venus come in unique styles to meet every taste for the kitchen or dining room. The range has been mirror polished, adding a star-like sparkle to the dinner table.

Each of the designs is made from 18/0 stainless steel, making them not only durable and hardwearing, but also dishwasher safe - perfect for home and catering use.

Rachel Grunweg, sales and marketing director commented: "Grunweg saw a niche in the market for affordable yet stylish cutlery for in the home and professional kitchen.

"We pride ourselves on being on the forefront of innovative design and the new Planets range is no exception. Grunweg are very excited about these collections."

Legacy

Form and functionality are the key words in Georg Jensen's new Legacy series by Danish designer Philip Bro Ludvigsen. The series consists of a small and large carafe that can be used for pouring water or milk.

The decorative grooves provide a firm grip while the carafes' insulating design ensures that ice water stays cold and hot milk hot.

Pictured is the Legacy breadbasket, which presents its contents on an elegant cloth napkin shaped like a leaf. The cloth napkin is dark blue on one side and white on the other. The breadbasket also serves as a perfect bowl for fruit or snacks. Each element within the range can be purchased separately. The series will be on sale from mid-September.

MAKE International gets Blunt

MAKE International has unveiled two exclusive new ranges - the Blunt Project and the Fifties Collection.

The dynamic Blunt Project is an ever-expanding collection of funky mugs. All boasting eye-catching designs, from floral images to playful animals and humorous slogans, it makes an ideal Christmas gift.

The fabulous Fifties Collection is a step back in time, a must for all retro kitchens or nostalgic hearts.

Boasting famous 50s advertising slogans on a wide selection of mugs, jugs, tins and bowls, the collection is a reminder of post-war England. MAKE has even designed brown gift packaging to match.

Dominic Speelman, MAKE International managing director said: "MAKE's most trendy and colourful designs to date, the retro Fifties range and the funky Blunt Project collection are available in plenty of time for Christmas.

"Both ranges are individually gift boxed and retail for under £10, making them perfect Christmas presents."
